FREEDOM IS EARNED, NOT GIVEN

"Black Love Is the Celebration"

Black love is the fire that never dies,

A rhythm that echoes through truth-telling eyes.

It's the laughter at cookouts, the prayers at night,

The hand on your back when the world ain't right.

It's roots that run deep like ancestral drums,
The storm and the shelter where strength comes from.
Not just romance, but legacy grown,
A house built on healing, where kings and queens are known.

While they wave their flags in red, white, and blue,
We gather in truth, in power, in hue.
Because freedom ain't found in a government plan
It lives in the heart of our love for our clan.

J.U.L.Y.: Join Unify & Love Your own. July is the month in which the white men in the 13 United colonies of America declared themselves independent/free of the British crown. They declared "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed, by their Creator, with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." On July 4, 1776 who were considered men in America and who had an unalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness? So many Black people and people of color in America blindly celebrate this day, as though it actually applies to them. What are they really celebrating? Their freedom or their enslavement? What were they designated to be on July 4, 1776? Many will ignorantly say slavery has ended and that they are American citizens now. So the 4 of July is also their independence day. Really! This is a fallacy of thinking steeped within the concepts of the Stockholm Syndrome. Til this day, 249 years later, Black people in America do not have an unalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Unalienable means "impossible to take away or give up." Now tell me, how are Black people included in the declaration of independence? Not only is Black people's right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness being taken away, but many are willingly giving them up for financial gain, stardom, drugs, and even a white lover. Let's keep it real, because the Black man Jesus said the truth will make you free. Remember, unalienable means "impossible to take away or give up." J.U.L.Y. should be a month where Black people celebrate the thing which held us together as a people on July 4, 1776, while living under the daily brutality of enslavement and terrorist acts. The Black Family. As a people we Joined & Unified our family in one common struggle, and through the Love of Your own, we built unbreakable bonds and barriers which helped us maintain our sanity and kept us morally centered human beings. It is only when we abandoned this concept of the Black Family, and began to foolishly believe we are Americans with an unalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, that we lost our sanity and replaced it with their insanity; and lost our morality and replaced it with their immorality.

FREEDOM IS EARNED, NOT GIVEN...

This is what we have become and what we are celebrating the continuation of every year on the 4th of July. We are celebrating their subjugation of our life, liberty and pursuit of happiness. RESOLVE: Let's reinstate the concept of Black Family as the foundation of our community and Nation. The concept of Black Family which sustained us as a people during chattel slavery, reconstruction and Jim Crow. Black Family which is now educated within the Knowledge of Self and our divine origin in this world, because it is within that divine origin where we will find our innate right to Freedom, Justice and Equality. Freedom of life, Justice of liberty and Equality of the pursuit of happiness as divine beings daily living a human existence. This is what we must declare and on July 4th every year celebrate as our day of Black Family Independence. Join Unify & Love Yourown! Peace.

- Understanding Self Allah

Freedom is expressed not merely as the absence of physical chains b.u.t as the result of mental refinement, a state of elevation cultivated through dedication to Self and the Nation. True Freedom cannot be bestowed. It is not gifted through legislation, nor granted by the hands of those who once oppressed. It emerges when God recognizes His Divine Nature, reclaims the throne of Self-Mastery, and governs his Cipher with Knowledge, Wisdom, and Understanding. Freedom comes when Earth nurtures life according to her divine measure, harmonizing her role in the restoration of balance.

God is not free by default. He becomes free when he transcends savage conditions by living Mathematics, not just quoting it. When the Mind is purified, when the Body is disciplined, when the heart aligns with Truth then Freedom is manifested. The path to Freedom is the walk of the righteous: decoding history, building with civilization, and mastering the Science of Everything in Life.

Incarceration, poverty, and mis-education are not just systemic barriers, they are conditions that challenge God to rise. And rise we must. For each mathematical build, each degree explored, each child taught, each community organized, Freedom becomes less an ideal and more an embodied Reality; Earned Freedom means we are active builders. We craft Nations, whether we're teaching in prisons, guiding youth in our Universal Schools, or building Peace through Parliament, each act is a brick in the foundation of our Liberation.

Freedom is a seed that must be cultivated, protected, and distributed. And we do so not alone b.u.t collectively. Our duty is Nation-building, not Nation-waiting. Ain't no savior coming. We are the answer, the plan, and the action. Peace.

ADDING ON...

Peace to the Earths! As we build on the idea that Freedom is Earned, Not Given, know this: you are not an afterthought in that equation; you are central to it. True Freedom isn't found in the absence of oppression alone; it's maintained through the balance and unity of the Black Family. And you, Earth, are that force that cultivates that unity. You are the soil in which the seeds of our future are planted by nurturing not just babies, but ideas, values, and movements.

Let no one make you feel like your role is minimal. Freedom is not sustained by God alone; the harmony of God and Earth upholds it, each fulfilling their divine function. When you teach, when you heal, when you correct, protect, and build, you are not just supporting the Nation, you are preserving it. Mother of Civilization, you carry culture in your walk, you speak mathematics in your way of life, and you provide the structure by which the next generation learns who they are. That is power, not passivity. they are. That is power, not passivity.

So stand firm. Be present. Be active. The Nation is not complete without you. Freedom isn't just earned by one rising, but by all of refusing to be erased.

This is our liberation {freedom}. Not one side, not halfway. But as one united family, God and Earth, Black man and Black woman, Light and Reflection, we build, we grow, and we become free.

Peace to the sisters who build. You are not only included, you are very necessary.

Freedom Under Fire: Understanding Project 2025

Project 2025 is a comprehensive conservative blueprint designed to restructure the U.S. government and roll back decades of progress on civil rights, education, healthcare, and social protections. Developed by The Heritage Foundation and other right-wing organizations, this 900-page plan seeks to consolidate power under the executive branch, dismantle federal agencies, and impose policies aligned with Christian nationalist ideals. Project 2025's agenda includes weakening or abolishing programs like the Department of Education, reducing diversity and inclusion initiatives, restricting reproductive rights, and stripping away regulations that protect marginalized communities. If enacted, it would shift the country toward a system that prioritizes a narrow, exclusionary vision of governance.

The impact on Black and Brown communities would be devastating, reversing hard-fought gains in civil rights, voting access, and economic opportunity. Project 2025 calls for the removal of diversity, equity, and inclusion programs across government institutions and universities, which would further limit access to education and fair representation. It threatens to reduce funding for social services that uplift low-income and marginalized families while strengthening policing and surveillance systems that already disproportionately harm our communities. Moreover, by targeting public schools and rewriting the historical narrative of slavery, racism, and systemic oppression, Project 2025 would erode truth-based education and the cultural self-awareness that drives liberation movements.

To counter Project 2025, we must be proactive, informed, and united in building our own power. We cannot wait for legislative changes or political saviors...our response must begin with grassroots organizing, educating our families about the threat, and protecting our voting rights. Supporting legal challenges against unjust policies, strengthening Black-owned institutions, and building community resilience will be key. Just as our ancestors fought systems designed to erase them, we too must rise and ensure that our liberation remains in our hands. Freedom is not given, it is earned, protected, and defended through collective action. Frederick Douglass reminds us "Power concedes nothing without a demand. It never did and it never will."

Did you know Mary McLeod Bethune Started a School with Just $1.50 and Turned It into a University?

In 1904, with only $1.50, faith, and a vision, Mary McLeod Bethune opened a small school for Black girls in Daytona, Florida. She used charcoal for pencils, cardboard for tables, and transformed abandoned buildings into classrooms.

Bethune's belief was simple but powerful: "I leave you love. I leave you hope. I leave you the challenge of developing confidence in one another."

From $1.50 to a University

Through determination and community support, her school grew into Bethune-Cookman University, one of the most respected HBCUs (Historically Black Colleges and Universities) in the country. She raised funds by speaking across the nation and rallying Black communities to invest in their own freedom through education.

Why It Matters for Us

Bethune's story is a blueprint for Nation-building: She didn't wait for someone to give her permission...she built with what she had. She showed that self-determination, unity, and vision can transform small beginnings into legacies that uplift generations.
